BUSINESS THIS MONTH RATHER SPOTTED, REPORT

Building and Agriculture on Upgrade But Recession Noted in Iron Steel and Coal Industries

EMPLOYMENT STEADY AND WAGES CONTINUE GOOD

Associated Press

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 31.—Indications that business conditions in the Eighth Federal Reserve District in the past 30 days were "rather spotted" were noted in the monthly business report of the St. Louis Federal Reserve Bank, made public late today.

Some lines showed gains over the corresponding period last year, the report said, but others made less favorable reports.

Building permits issued in the five largest cities in the district in September, however, increased 62.9 per cent, as compared with those issued in September of 1922. The cities are Louisville, Memphis, Little Rock, Evansville and St. Louis.

"Reports relative to business in this district during the past 30 days indicate rather spotted conditions," the report asserted. "In a number of lines, notably those involving goods for common consumption, the recent active pace has been maintained, and as a rule, slight gains over the corresponding period of last year are reported. Elsewhere, however, accounts are less favorable, and there are complaints of hesitation on the part of buyers in filling their requirements, particularly those farther ahead than 60 to 90 days.

"Recession in volume of trade in goods based on iron and steel was reported. The sharp declines in pig iron and coke prices failed to bring matters into the market for these materials, and contracting for last quarter needs is considerably under normal for this period of the year.

"The coal market was dull and weak with a general disposition on the part of both steam users and householders to postpone purchasing.

"A slowing down, particularly seasonal, has taken place in the automotive industry, with subsidary lines such as tires, depressed.

"In addition to unevenness in the several lines of trade, irregularity is reported in results obtained in different sections of the district. Trade in the largest cities, particularly the retail department, is holding up well, reflecting continued heavy employment Through the typical gains and livestock areas relatively less activity is reported and some backwardness is noted in the mining districts. Active marketing of cotton in the South at high prices has served to stimulate business in that general section. Business in the tobacco districts is holding up well and the same is true of sections where rice is the principal crop. Late fruit and vegetable crops are turning out well, with marketing conditions in the main satisfactory.

"There is a good demand for track laborers, common labor and road and river improvement work. Wages continue at the recent high levels. In the building industry a shortage of certain classes of mechanics still remains, notably plasterers, lathers and bricklayers.

"Developments in agriculture were on the whole satisfactory, and a greater degree of optimism was noted in rural communities.

The principal factor affecting sentiment was the sharp upturn in prices of cereals and other farm products

Despite a sharp reduction in prospective tobacco production in states of the district during September, due principally to unfavorable weather, the year's output will be in excess of the 1922 crop. In Kentucky the crop of all types in estimated at 307,325,000 pounds, which compares with a prospect on September 1 for 565,186,000 pounds and actual output in 1922 of 446,250,000 pounds.

For the country as a whole, the tobacco crop is estimated at 1,500,716,000 pounds against 1,324,840,000 pounds in 1922 and a 5-year average, 1917-21 inclusive, of 1,361,149,000 pounds. Approximately 45,000,000 pounds of the 1922 crop are now in the hands of the Burley Tobacco Growers Co-operative Association and a like amount in the hands of the Dark Tobacco Association Large buyers are postponing purchasing until the exact status of the 1923 crop is known.

Marketing of crops and the arrival of cooler weather has had a stimulating effect on the retail department of distribution. The movement of seasonal goods is reported brisk, both the city and country, with sales of clothing running ahead of the same price in 1922. Freight loadings continue at unprecedented levels."

One would judge from this photo showing Lloyd George leaving the White House after a chat with President Coolidge, that the English statesman is er—ahem—knock-kneed. But he isn't. It's just the unusual slant the camera took of him.

Doug and Mary, Indignant Over Accusations, To Sue Magazine

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 31.—A court battle to stop alleged malicious and unfounded stories about motion picture stars is expected to be started in New York today by Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks. They said their eastern attorney had been instructed to bring suit against a film magazine alleged to have published a report that Evelyn Brent, Fairbanks' former leading lady, had caused an estrangement between Mary and Douglas. Miss Brent joined with them in denouncing the alleged libelous articles as "ridiculously untrue."

Mary characterized the story as "nasty and unjust." Referring to supposed rumors of separation from Fairbanks being imminent, Mary said her husband "follows along whenever I go on location, even if he has to stop work on his own picture."

Fairbanks described the rumors as about what might be expected from those "who have been talking about me for years," and added, "Mary and I never were so happy in our lives." Mary said they had not been separated one night since they were married and "we don't intend to be."

SEARCY CERTAIN OF G. O. P. VICTORY

Says Apathy of Democrats Contrasts With Republican Enthusiasm —Expects 22,000 Lead

Chesley H. Searcy, chairman of the Republican State Campaign Committee has issued the following statement:

"Anything that may be said at this time relative to the outcome of the election on Tuesday, November 6, must be based largely on general information reaching state headquarters from the various county leaders.

"While there has been in evidence all along in this campaign a feeling of certain Republican victory, the trend to the Republican ticket has been most noticeable during the past ten days.

"The apparent apathy of Democratic voters in Democratic strongholds contrasts strongly with the splendid enthusiasm displayed smoothly in every county, there is no internal discord, and a tremendous effort is being made by every Republican worker to make certain a large majority for General Dawson and the remainder of the ticket.

"The general state of the campaign at present, together with carefully-prepared estimates from the various counties which are reaching headquarters, would permit an estimate at this time of at least 22,000 majority for the Republican ticket on November 6."

STRAW VOTE ON TUESDAY ELECTION

Dawson Has Almost Twice Fields' Strength—Commissioners Stand Same As In Primary

An attempt to take a straw vote today in order to form pre-election opinions on the outcome was only partially successful because such a large number of persons either were unwilling to tell for whom they would vote or else said they had not yet decided upon their candidate. Particularly was this true in indicating the choice for city commissioners and the charge was frequently brought that the candidates had not yet made their platforms plain enough to the public. In only two cases did qualified voters say they did no tintend to vote in the coming election. Two stated that they would vote for only one commissioner.

The vote which was taken on Cumberland avenue between Nineteenth and Twenty-first streets, showed that Dawson would receive about two-thirds of the votes and Fields one-third. An expression of opinion in this matter was much more easily received than in the city race.

In the choice for commissioners the vote stood much the same as it did in the city primary Out of 35 persons who expressed an opinion, the vote stood as follows: Cooke, 27; Evans, 18; Manring, 11; Giles, 9.

WORLD TRAVELER HAS DECIDED TO SETTLE DOWN IN MIDDLESBORO

After having traveled around the earth five times, visited every continent and almost every country on the globe, M. C. Wilson, sailor, poet and versatile writer has decided to settle down in Middlesboro.

Afflicted with an attack of wanderlust similar to that which made Jack London a tramp in his youth, and a vivid fiction writer in his mature years, "Shorty" Wilson has never been able to remain in one place any great length of time. He holds a first mate's papers and has occupied that position on a number of vessels. His ship was wrecked off the coast of Borneo a few years ago but not a man was lost.

Mr. Wilson has worked for some of the leading newspapers of the country, his line being chiefly human interest stories written in the lighter vein. He has written a long poem, "The Knights of the Road," in which his adventures are chronicled. He speaks several languages fluently.

The adventurer's father formerly lived in this vicinity, though he moved to Oregon before the former was born. "Shorty" left home when he was 11 years old with only a third grade education and shipped as a cabin boy on a sea-going vessel. By his personal contact with human life in all its form and incessant reading of books he now has a good education.

The demonstration for the most part will itake the form of a parade to form at the Page bridge at 2 p. m. Middlesboro cars will get in line at the fountain square on Cumberland avenue at 12:15 p. m, and drive to meet the Pineville line at Page, proceding from there to the courthouse where Mr. Dawson will speak.

LOCAL BOYS EXPECT BIG GAME FRIDAY

To Meet Maryville Team Here in What May Be Hardest Fight of Season

M. H. S. knights of the grid will oppose the Maryville, Tenn. high school football team on the local field at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon for the sixth game of the season. The Maryville team ranks high in the sport in Tennessee and some lively scrimmaging for the pigskins is expected.

The rival team has played Knoxville High and Central High teams, two of the best in the state, this season, and while they lost both games, it was by a narrow margin. Coach John R. Bender, Knoxville athletic director, states that the Maryville team is one of the most formidable in the state.

Encouraged by the five consecutive successes this season, M. H. S. boys are hopeful that Maryville's scalp will dangle from their belt ere the last quarter has ended, though they realize the necessity of keeping in trim and are practicing at the East End ball park each afternoon.

On account of the fact that Centre College and the University of Kentucky will meet in conflict on the Danville grid Saturday the local game was set for Friday instead of Saturday, according to Coach John T. Kilpatrick. Also, a greater attendance can be expected from business men on Friday. Hereafter, games will be played on Saturdays, he stated.

While the attendance at the five previous games has been fairly good, receipts have not been enough to entirely defray expenses after equipment is paid for, the athletic director stated. Transportation expense of visiting teams is always borne by the local organization and this often amounts to a considerable figure.

MERCHANTS MAY CLOSE FOR FOOTBALL GAME HERE FRIDAY

The question of whether or not Middlesboro merchants will close next Friday afternoon for the football game will be discussed at the meeting of the Merchants' Association which will take place at the Elks' Home at 7:30 Thursday night, according to S. M. Reams, president.

Reports of the expenditures of the Harvest Festival recently held here will be read. The proposition of promoting a "Trade in Middlesboro" week a campaign that will bring hundreds of rural residents to town, will be discussed by the members of the association.

STILL AND TWO MEN ARE TAKEN THIS MORNING

Entire Outfit in Distilling Process Discovered by Officers Here— Offenders Put in City Jail

DISCOVERED ABOUT ONE MILE SOUTHWEST OF TOWN

A complete distilling outfit and two men were captured about a mile South east of No. 11 trestle in the hills, by the city police and county officers at noon today. George Marsee and Sherman Baker, alleged owners of the illicit still, were brought to Middlesboro and placed in the city jail there to await examining trial before the magistrate.

Policeman C. M. Yeary and A. D. Debusk, and Deputies D. C. Sellers and Burl Smith and Constable J. A. Thompson formed the raiding party. Before the officers reached the vicinity of the still, the party divided into two parts and approached the scene in different directions. It was agreed that a shot be fired as a signal to the others when the still was found.

Capt. Debusk who lead one party found a mixer can, some malt corn, a furnace and other evidences of a still and fired the shot as a signal. About this time Yeary and Thompson had discovered smoke rising from the actual scene of the moonshining. This they began to approach cautiously.

Hearing the signal shot, the two men attending the still ran, but unfortunately for them, the came in the direction of Yeary who had them covered with his revolver before they had time to resist. Both men were unarmed and submitted to arrest without resistance. Thompson kept them covered with a rifle while the other officer searched them.

The still which is of 54 gallon capacity had not been set up but water was being heated over the fire for the mash. Eight sacks of meal, a quantity of sugar were found as well as complete distilling equipment such as flake stand, tubs, buckets, fermenters, etc. The still had been moved from the site where the first part of the equipment was found and the fire had barely been started when the capture was made. The distilling property was brought to Middlesboro along with the captured men.

COLD WEATHER BRINGS MANY DUCKS TO WATERS NEAR HERE

Cool weather is bringing myriads of ducks to streams and bodies of water in this section. Anumber ore reported at Fern Lake and this morning hunters were there exarting heavy toll from the flocks of water fowls.

The mallard and the ring-neck ducks are common in this section at this season of the year. The State game law permits the killing of the ducks at this season. The season on quail is not yet open and rabbits may not be killed until November 15

A flock of wild geese was seen to pass over Middlesboro Saturday for Southern climes. This species of game fowl is not usually found in this section, though they occasionally make brief stops here.

A THOUGHT

Woe to him that buildeth a town with blood and establisheth a city by iniquity.—Hab. 2:12.

We ought never to sport with pain and distress in any of our amusements, or treat even the meanest insect with wanton cruelty.—Blair.

COMMUNITY CO-OPERATION AND RECREATION

Community co-operation for social entertainment and recreation has come to be recognized as of paramount importance with the church and the school for the proper development of youth and citizenship. This has been positively determined by results in the cities and small towns. In rural communities the Grange is usually the "social center" and in some places its activities have been enlarged to include local theatricals and moving pictures one or more evenings each week. According to reports received from hundreds of these co-operative community social centers they have paid the highest dividends to society in the better thought and conduct of the young people, and in the greater contentment and happiness of all the people.

In one community of about 1,500 souls community effort has not only organized all such recreations but has housed them. Protestant and catholic worked hand in run, preacher and priest vying with each other to accomplish most for the people as a whole. With the assistance of a local manufactory the people of Austin, Pa., housed their recreational activities in one of the most complete and best appointed community buildings in this country, a motel for every small town and for larger ones, too. In it are an assembly hall, a theatre, pool room, bowling alleys, card room, library, reception room, dining room, baths, administration offices, etc. Every man, woman and child in the town is a stockholder and has a voice in management, and in the two years of operation every citizen has profited mentally, physically, and spiritually from his or her investment. The town has become a community of mutual interests in all matters, with unity of purpose and co-operation to attain it.

The Austin experiment is worthy of the most critical study of all communities. It is not a dream because it is a fact. It is not a theory because it is a demonstration. It has not only solved the small-town recreation problem but is building a better and more responsible citizenship, leveling class barriers and making all Americans in spirit so far as public interests are concerned. The same thing can be done in any community in which are located industries that will aid in financing by loaning part of the needed funds. As a rule business men take pleasure in helping it, and the churches give it wholehearted support.

SPIRIT OF HALLOWE'EN

Spooks and goblins and other astral beings of the spirit world are to be loosed on earth tonight, according to the popular tradition which began in ancient days when festivities attending All Saints Day were expected to lure these from mystic realms.

But there is one spirit at least that will be real, the spirit of mischief and fun, ever rampant in youth on this night of all nights. This spirit often leads to pranks which would be reprehensible at other times, but which, unless there be unreasonable and irreparable damage, are taken in good nature by those against whom they are perpetrated.

Let us hope there are none so old and staid who cannot take a reasonable practical joke good-humoredly, also that no one will take advantage of the occasion and do serious property damage.

Hallowe'en is one night in the year when we can all discard the cares and worries and even the garments of our work-a-day lives and, fantastically garbed as sprites, roam at will and transform common-place city streets and homes into enchanted lands teeming with elfs, imps and witches. It is an occasion when identity, convention and all things which form a part of our ordinary lives are lost, swallowed up in the maelstrom of hilarity and innocent revelry.

Berton Braley's Poem

It's quite the proper thing of late
To knock, belabor and berate
Our country for its backward state
In ways artistic.
To say that dollars are our goal
And all we think of is "a roll,"
And that our people have a soul
Commercialistic.

I'm fed up on that sort of stuff,
We like the shekels well enough:
And so, in spite of all their bluff,
Do other nations.
But for the poet's singing line,
For music, painting and design
We, too, possess some very fine
Appreciations.

Commercial? That we can't deny,
And that, undoubtedly, is why
These uncommercial peoples vie
To tap our coffer;
And artists, singers, actors come
From everywhere in Christendom
Because we'll pay the largest sum
For what they offer.

I'm sick of supercilious cliques,
Who with the masses never mix,
And yet who will presume to fix
Our state artistic.
Get down beneath the surface, find
The soul of us, the heart and mind
You've got a bunch, fair generous, kind
Idealistic!

So, though to knock is quite the style,
I choose to wave the flag awhile!

Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton

NO. 5—WILL O' THE WISP

"Most people cannot see me," he nodded.

"Good evening, my dears!"

The Twins looked around but could see nobody. The voice seemed to come from the pond in front of them. But nothing appeared but a dim light which glowed over the water.

"Good evening!" said Nancy. "But we can't see anybody. Where are you and who are you?"

"Guess!" said the voice. At the same time the light came nearer.

Suddenly a thought popped into Nick's head. It was a story he had heard about a little boy called Peter Pan, who went to a place called Never-Never-Never Land, and met a fairy who wasn't anything but a spot of light.

"Are you Tinker-Bell, the fairy?" he cried. "Are you Peter Pan's fairy?"

"No, not that either," came the voice. "I'll tell you who I am. I'm called Will o' the Wisp. I live in Dixie Land but I never stay in the same place long. I move around from place to place in a boat and I always carry a lantern. I'm sort of a night policeman because I see that all the water folk are safe. Can you see me now?"

Very slowly there appeared, to the Twins' astonished eyes, an odd little man in a queer little boat.

"Most people cannot see me," he nodded, "but I was sure you could, because you have magic along. But you must never try to come any nearer to me than you are now or I will disappear. I always keep a certain distance away from mortals. Another thing: Dry land is not good for my health. I must live where there is water, and so I stay on ponds and moor her in my boat."

"You are different from other fairies," said Nancy. "We know ever so many and none of them are like you."

Will o' the Wisp chuckled silently. "That's the best compliment I've had since my seven hundredth birthday!" he declared, "and I'm a thousand years old. Fairies all like to be different. If they weren't they wouldn't be fairies. Well, that's enough about me, kiddies. Who are you, and what are you doing in Dixie Land?"

The Twins told how they had come to help their Dixie Landers, by the Fairy Queen's orders.

"Ringtail, the Coon, came down this way and we followed him," said Nick. "We thought it queer that he should sleep all day and then start out for a walk at night. He came straight toward this pond."

"It isn't strange at all!" declared Will o' the Wisp. "That's the way he always does. He's after food and he's got his eye on Poke-Nose Pickerel. Ringtail's very fond of fish."

LETTER FROM MRS. JOSEPH GRAVES HAMILTON TO LESLIE PRESCOTT

This is the first time, my dear daughter, that I have felt I could sit down and talk to you in the way I usually do in my letters.

Your father has been lying outdoors in the porch swing all day. He was able to walk out of the room this morning and seemed quite like himself.

I have not heard from Alice for over a week. Suppose she is very busy getting ready to be presented at court.

Oh, my dear child, when I think of it all it seems like a fairy tale to me. You know, my dear, I had little education and your father even less than I. I don't know that I ever told you, but we spent the evenings of the first two years after we were married poring over books and trying to learn.

Of course your father is one of the greatest steel men in the country today and I believe there is nothing about a steel mill or steel machinery that he does not know. He has learned it all in the hard school of experience and what he could get from his books in the evenings.

I was about Alice's age when you were born dear, and we were so very very poor that someone who knew and liked your father in the mills persuaded his wife to send me your layette. I had to be up and around the house a little over a week after you were born, dear, but thank God we both were always well.

I can't pretend to describe to you all the sacrifices and economies that I practiced. I never dreamed that I would be able to give you the splendid education that is yours and certainly I never dreamed that one of my daughters would be presented at England's court.

Your father and I were talking about it the other night and we agreed that all this is a part of the heritage of America. Your father said, "That is the reason why I allowed Leslie to marry a comparatively poor man and why I didn't settle a half million dollars on her at the time of marriage. I believe that every man and woman should strike out for themselves. I would not for anything in the world take away from Jack and Leslie the great joy that you and I had of saving and sacrificing."

Truly it is a joy, Leslie. You will come to know that when you have lived along far enough to get the right perspective on all the upheavals of your first years of marriage.

From the tone of your letters lately, dear, I have come to the conclusion that you have been having one of those upheavals now. I do not want to pry into your affairs but please let me tell you that the first three years of married life are the crucial ones. In them you must really get acquainted with your husband and he with you.

You must adjust yourselves to an entirely different environment and mode of living. Whenever you feel that maybe John is not as fine and splendid as you first imagined, do not forget that he may be having the same disappointment over you.

I intended to write you a newsy letter but instead I am preaching a little. I'll close before I become prosy.

Lovingly,
MOTHER.

Autumn in the Garden

Like winds that blow from far, sequestered seas
With song of lonely waters gray and vast,
And undiscovered islands of the past,
Dim in the mists of vanished destinies,
The Autumn winds bring murmuring melodies
From pale horizons where the great hills massed
Like monks for rites of evening chant at last
Farewell to summer and her mysteries.

Deserted are the aisles where beauty walked
In glowing raiment wrought of leaf and bloom
And listen to the tales of bee and bird,
Alone where roses with the summer talked
Or watching the weaving of her fragrant looms,
Pause now the feet of memory, unheard.

SISTER Mary's KITCHEN

Dietetically doughnuts and fried cakes are looked upon more or less askance. But carefully fried doughnuts enjoyed sensibly sure can be a treat. The cheer and good will embodied in these purely American puff balls have a psychological effect of almost as much value to the human system on a drear November day as many calories of "high food value."

In reality doughnuts are bits of real bred sweetened and fried in deep hot fat.

Fried cakes are of the nature of a "quick bread" dough fried in deep hot fat.

Some cooks maintain that half beef suet and half lard is preferable to all lard for frying. That there is less trouble about the doughnuts soaking fat when the half-and-half fat is used.

Other cooks prefer a vegetable fat for deep fat frying.

The question each housewife must answer for herself.

But the temperature of the fat must be carefully watched and gauged during the whole frying process. This determines the fat soaking difficulty. The fat should be hot enough to brown an inch cube of bread from the soft part of the loaf in 60 seconds. An iron kettle is desirable as the heaviness of the material holds the heat and prevents the fat from cooling when the cakes are dropped into it.

Drain doughnuts on heavy brown paper when removed from the fat.

Sweet milk fried cakes should come almost immediately to the top of the fat, brown on one side, turn and then brown on the other. Turn only once. Sour milk cakes can be turned several times while frying. The fat must be kept at an even temperature.

Sweet Milk Fried Cakes

One cup sugar, 1 cup milk, 3 tablespoons melted lard, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 2 eggs, 1-4 teaspoon nutmeg, 1-4 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon salt, flour to make a soft dough.

Beat eggs until very light with sugar. Add one cup of flour and beat until smooth. Add melted lard and beat again. Beat in milk. Sift baking powder with one cup flour and stir into mixture. Add salt and spice. Add enough more flour to make just as soft a dough as can be handled. Put part of the dough on a well floured board, pat and roll with a doughnut cutter and fry in deep hot fat.

Sour Milk Fried Cakes

One cup sugar, 3 tablespoons melted butter, 2 eggs, 1 cup sour milk, 1 teaspoon soda, 4 cups flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon nutmeg.

Cream butter and sugar. Add eggs well beaten. Add cup flour. Add sour milk with soda dissolved in it. Add remaining flour and stir until smooth. Toss on a well floured board, roll and cut. Fry in deep hot fat.

Raised Doughnuts.

Two cups sugar, 1 cup yeast, 1-2 cup lard, 1 cup milk, 2 eggs, 1 nutmeg, 1-2 teaspoon soda, flour.

If possible procure the yeast from a bakery.

In the evening scald the milk. Let cool to lukewarm and add yeast and sugar, salt and flour to make a thin batter. Let rise over night. In the morning add eggs well beaten, softened lard, nutmeg, and three cups of flour. Mix well and all soda dissolved in a little hot water. Add salt and flour to make a stiff dough. Let rise, and if necessary add more flour to handle. Roll on a well floured board, shape and let rise until double their bulk. Fry in deep hot fat and drain on brown paper.

TULIP NEEDS CARE

The gorgeous tulip is always a delight in the window garden. The great danger with tulips lies in bringing the bulbs too soon from the cellar. Ten the dark are required for the formation of the roots.

The crocus makes a charming indoor garden. It must be grown cool. It will not thrive in a very warm room. The crocus looks best when planted in a shallow pan — six to eight bulbs in a five inch pan.

Freezias should be planted closely —at least 12 bulbs in a four-inch pot, with the tops above the soil and put in a sunny window as soon as planted.

The Railroads and Industries Are Siamese Twins—

The railroads of this country are dependent upon the industries for their existence, and likewise, the industries are dependent upon the railroads. Like the Siamese Twins, they are truly joined together by an inseparable bond. The health of the one means the health of the other, and the sickness of one means the sickness of the other.

Without railroad service, the products of the farms and the output of the factories become almost valueless in their restricted markets. When the arteries of transportation are either choked or suffering from anemia, industry catches the contagion and suffers from the same disease.

"Railway cars are the red blood corpuscles of commerce, and we suffer from commercial anemia every year because they are starved. The losses through short transportation are a tax upon the community greater than the cost of our Government because such a shortage not only stifles the progress of production and introduces speculation into distribution, but it also seriously affects price levels" says Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce of the United States, in his annual report for 1922.

The Railroads are among the country's largest buyers. They purchase and consume one fourth of all of the coal mined in the United States; one fourth of all the lumber, and from thirty to forty per cent of the output of the iron and steel factories. The Railroads and their purchases directly feed, clothe and support some 12 million Americans.

Verily, therefore the good health of the Railroads insures the good health of the entire nation.

THE OLD RELIABLE

The purchasing power of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad and of its more than fifty thousand employees aids materially in keeping busy the wheels of industry within the thirteen states the L. & N. serves.

Governmental "regulation", or strangulation, of the railroads regulates your business and prosperity as well. You can't hurt one without hurting the other.

SURE IT DOES GOOD

Thedford's Black-Draught Liver Medicine (Vegetable) Praised by the Head of a Louisiana Family.

Lake Charles, La.—"I don't know what we would have done had we not had Black-Draught. It sure is one of the best medicines made, and am sure the best liver medicine," said Mr. Henry Garrett, of this city.

"My whole family uses it," continued Mr. Garrett. "My wife says she believes she kept off the 'flu' by taking doses of Black-Draught regularly.

"I, myself, use Black-Draught for indigestion, and it is fine.

"We used pills and tablets and other laxatives, but they never seemed to do us good, but the Black-Draught sure has, and it has come to our house to stay. We give it to our daughter for headache and torpid liver.

"I am glad to recommend anything that has been the help to my family that Black-Draught has.

"My present health is good. Have two boxes of Black-Draught in the house now."

If your liver gets out of fix, take Black-Draught. It will help to drive the bile poisons and other unhealthful matters out of your system.

DUPONT OPERATED FIRST TROLLY LINE IN AMERICA

Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 30.—The first electric trolley line in America was constructed and operated by Biderman DuPont, 86, who recently died in Washington, Del., and whose body was brought here for burial, according to Temple Bodley, a Louisville attorney.

"The trolley line," said Mr. Bodley, "was a wee affair with tracks only two feet apart, cars about four feet wide with wheels the size of the wheels on children's pushmobiles."

Mr. Bodley traced his recollections of Mr DuPont from the time he was president of the Elizabethtown and Paducah Railroad, which had been built to give Louisville a trade to the Southwest, to his career as owner of the Louisville Commercial, a daily Republican paper, and his exploits in the development of the western Kentucky coal fields and the founding of Central City.

Mr. DuPont spent much of his life here, but moved to Delaware some years ago.

ON THE ROAD TO BONEYARD

"I have just finished a treatment of your wonderful remedy and can say it has done wonders for me already. For the past five years I have been unable to eat any but the lightest food and that but sparingly, as any food caused me to bloat with gas. I was reduced to a skeleton of 90 pounds, and was on the road to the boneyard. A friend in Birmingham sent me a bottle of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, which I took, and I am sure it will entirely cure me of my trouble, judging from what it brought from me and the way I feel." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucous from the intestinal tract and allays the inflamation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At Lee's and all druggists.

Your Health

Mouth Breathing

There is a well defined relation between mouth breathing and affliction of the nasal sinuses. Other parts of the olfactory organs suffer even more. The conditions of the nose and throat involving adenoid growth, obstruction and deformities of the septum as well as mucous polyps, cause mouth breathing.

These abnormal growths must be corrected in early life, or permanent loss in the normal development of the inner nose will result through lack of use. Mouth breathing will often result in jaw and teeth displacement. It also causes facial deformities such as dulled eyes, lack of expression, open or hanging mouth and deformed jaw.

Many people are half-mouth breathers and are not aware of the fact. In early life, though some illness which impaired their breathing, they contracted this habit.

The early defects were never corrected, and as a consequence, their breathing capacity through the proper nasal passages has remained impaired. In many cases their air volume is only of a small child. A health examination by a competent physician at least once a year, would have brought a great relief to the patient.

Temporary mouth breathing may result from severe colds or other nasal disturbances by nasal cclusion. This is a swelling and inflammation of the mucous membrane and results in almost complete stoppage of the air passages.

Mouth breathing invites the germs of influenza, pneumonia and tuberculosis. If you are subject to its trouble, try and have it remedied at once. It may change your whole life.

GIVING OUT

The struggle discourages many a citizen of Middlesboro.
Around all day with an aching back,
Can't rest at night;
Enough to make any one "give out."
Doan's Kidney Pills are helping thousands.
They are for kidney backache;
And other kidney ills.
Here is Middlesboro proof of their merit:

Mrs. M. G. Lambert, 517, N. 21th St., says: "I have found Doan's Kidney Pills all that is claimed for them. I have taken them several times when I have had attacks of kidney complaint. When I get an attack, I feel dull and languid and my back gets lame and sore. I get sharp pains in my side and my kidneys are irregular in action. If I stoop, I get dizzy spells. I get Doan's Kidney Pills whenever I have one of these attacks and they never fail to cure me. Doan's are a good kidney medicine and I gladly recommend them."

Prominent Young Lumberman Wants to Be R. R. Commissioner

Down near the tail end of the ticket under the Democratic device appears the name of "Clifton B. Gross, of Buckhorn, (Perry County) Ky.," who is the Democratic Nominee for Railroad Commissioner in the Third District, comprising 40 odd counties in the Eastern half of the State, and reaching from Covington to Middlesboro and from Whitely to Boyd.

Clifton Gross is a mountain boy born, reared and educated among us. By indefatigable perseverance and energy he has worked up from the ground floor—or rather from the tie woods to a commanding place among men of affairs. As head of the Buckhorn Coal and Lumber Company he has active charge of varied interests throughout the mountains and is in close touch with the need and develoment of this part as well as others in the State. He is eminently fitted for the place of Railroad Commissioner and he should receive the votes of all Bell county citizens regardless of politics.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

The double-tracking of the Southern Railway trunk line from Washington to Atlanta, 637 miles, cost $52,000,000.

Southern Railway System last year spent in the South $20,000,000 more than it received from the South.

Plowing back the earnings

In the ten years ending 1920, freight traffic on the Southern Railway System more than doubled. This was a very much larger gain than was shown by the railroads of the country as a whole. The South was growing faster than the rest of the country.

The Southern had to meet the test, but we had provided for such a demand. In these ten years we had expended $104,000,000 of new capital to increase the carrying capacity of our lines.

Our double-track had been increased from 443 to 1,021 miles; yard tracks and sidings from 2,786 to 3,351 miles; the tractive power of our locomotives had been increased 40 per cent; our average freight trainload had mounted from 274 to 500 tons, a notable gain in operating efficiency.

Of the $104,000,000 expended for additions and betterments, $21,000,000 only was obtained by the sale of new securities. The other $83,000,000 was taken from earnings and used in the improvement of the properties.

The upbuilding of the Southern Railway System to keep pace with the South has been planned with an understanding of the transportation needs of the South by men bred in the traditions of the South to know its problems.

The Southern serves the South, and it will serve the greater South of the future.

THE SOUTHERN SERVES THE SOUTH
